Introducing Donald N. Anderson to Alaska audiences.

Dr. Anderson first came to Alaska in 1960 when he successfully climbed Mt. McKinley, worked briefly on an environmental project in the Swanson River field, and completed building a house in Kenai.

After several years teaching high school in Western Washington State and returning to college for a couple more degrees, he returned to Alaska in 1966 to pioneer a new route on Mt. Hunter.

An unsuccessful expedition on a new McKinley route in 1968 brought Dr. Anderson and his wife, Dana, back to Alaska for an entire summer of touring the road system (and a few peaks in the Talkeetnas).

After completing his terminal degree in Physical Chemistry in 1970, Dr. Anderson spent some time in North Carolina followed by three years developing computer control systems for the sawmill industry.

Dr. Anderson returned permanently to Alaska in 1974 as an Engineering Analyst with the TAPS project, and started his software construction company, Software North, in 1978.

Twenty-nine years later he continues as the head of Software North although his experienced staff really runs the show; he devotes his time to speculating in commodities futures.

In addition to teaching multiple classes in mathematics, chemistry and engineering while pursuing advanced degrees Dr. Anderson has lectured on:

- National Health Care
- Health Effects of Radiation
- Nuclear Power Generation
- Property Forfeitures
- Islam
- Stealing Elections
- Term Limits
- Flat Tax and
- National Sales Tax
